

THE ISLAND

Jerry Cammarata of Rosebank received an honorary doctorate degree from Dowling College, Oakdale, N.Y., during its recent commencement ceremony.

Cammarata

Cammarata has served two terms as a member of the New York City Board of Education and is director of the New York State Boards Association.

He was appointed Chairman of the Youth Services Board by New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani.

Cammarata is the author of the book, "The Fun Book of Fatherhood," an autobiographical account of raising children. He is also a columnist for the syndicated Father's Diary, and is a contributor to many medical and political journals and newspapers nationally.

He has served as a health care management consultant specializing in risk and emergency management, OSHA compliance, medical facility technology services, staff development and education to more than 120 hospitals and nursing homes in the New York metropolitan area.

He is an adjunct faculty member for the City University of New York and Wagner College.

Cammarata received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Hofstra University and his Ph.D. from California Coast University.

He is a licensed speech/language pathologist, audiologist, hearing conservationist and a certified medical technician.

Cammarata has also received honorary degrees from Mercy College and St. John's University.

Dowling College was originated in 1955 as Suffolk County's first four-year college as an extension of Adelphi University. It was established as an independent institution in 1968.