A SUMMER'S WORTH OF FUN

Copies of "NYC Youth Guide to Summer Fun 2001," a listing of children's activities in the five boroughs, are being sent to community groups in the city this week. A total of 250,000 guides will be distributed. According to Department of Youth and Community Development Commissioner Jerry Cammarata (right), every police precinct and firehouse has a copy of the 98-page booklet, which includes free and fee-based events at libraries, museums, botanical gardens and other cultural institutions through Sept. 3. The public, he said, is welcome to stop in to use them. For more information, call the department's Youthline, 1-800-246-4646, to ask about events.
